OPENING SCHOOL.

in a Few Days the Girls and Boys Will be Carrying Stacks of Books.

be Carrying Stacks of Books.

The opening of the eleventh session of the Abbeville Graded School will take place next Monday, the löth of September.

The Faculty of the School is an able one, and the session will open auspiciously. The children have been resting during the heated term, and now when cooler days and more comfortable nights have come the little folk are ready for work. It is important that every scholar should be promptly on hand at the appointed time. School children, like racers on the track, should have an even start with each other. The boy or girl that loses a week's time at the beginning is at a disadvantage during the whole year By all means, then, give your child a fair start.

Each teacher of the faculty is efficient in his or her department. Highly recommended teachers have been elected to take the places of those t-achers who resigned or declined re-election for the current year, and everything points to a successful year. The hearity co-operation of parents and the able efforts of teachers insure good results. The years are passing and the children have no time to lose. Let them get the advantage of a splendid school, which advantage may be of life long benefit to them.

The faculty at present consists of a superintendent and nine assistant teachers. The five former teachers are:

Superintendent, R. F. Gilliam, Abbeville.

Miss Emma White, Abbeville.

Miss May Robertson, Abbeville.

Miss May Robertson, Abbeville.

If Mr. Clark is telling the truth when he tells scores of people he can put his finger on ine would-be house burner. I say then, that Mr. Clark owes it to society and to his God to prosecute the case to the bitter extremity and knowing the facts, and wilfully refused to prosecute the case, is himself no betier, in the eyes of honest men, than the man who attempted the deed.
As soon as I heard of the fire, and by the way I would say, that Mr. Clark did not notify me of the fire till 11 A. M., the next day, when he came to my house in company with when he came to my house in company with Mr. Will Ellis. I dropped everything and went immediately to the scene ar d did everything in my power to fasten the crime on the

As to the insurance on the house, I would say that Mr. Henry Tennent of Lowndeaville S. C., an honorable man, after examining the house thoroughly, insured same for $100 and almost contiguous to the dwelling, there are several out houses, smoke house, well house, shed barn, none of which are insured, and the whole, including the dwelling, could not be built for $100.

built for $1000.

Again, as Mr. Clark knows the party who attempted to burn his house, and besides has a big respectively. Again, as Mr. Clark knows the barty who attempted the burn his house, and besides has in his possession, the jug, can and sack left by the party who would burn up his family, and resues to disclose the identity of the wretch, I would offer him or anyone else the sum of $200 in cash, for the apprehension and conviction of the party or parties who did on the night of August 20, 1902, set fire to the house now occupied by W. R. Clark and belonging to E. E. Williams.

NOTE BY THE EDITOR-In our notice last we-k of the attempt to burn Mr. Williams's house we certainly meant no reflection or imputation against him. We simply repeated the reports on the streets. Mr. Williams's life has been a correct one and no one would uspect him of wrong-doing.

Tired Tonight

How many souls are tired lonight, And weary and care-worn! Each one is tired—tired of The burden he has borne.

Come, tempted man, you're tired tonight; You long, yearn to do right. And yet you're overcome with wrong; You'ye fallen in the fight.

Rast now on this—that self ne'er can, Ne'er did, ne'er will prevall; But heaven can and does and will Defend when sins assail.

The struggling youth is tired tonight; He has a lofty aim. The battle seems so hard and long— This battle after fame. Rest pow on this-the good's not reached At just a leap or bound,
Be patient, then; the isdder climb;
Miss not a single round.

And here's another soul; she's tired; Seems earth would cast her off, She's penitent, but oh! so tired Of scorn and scowl and scoff.

Be patient, soul ; the deeds we do We never can undo. But heaven beheld, and still beholds, And heaven will see you through. The old folks, too, are tired, tonight, But, sh? How patient—see? What once to them was pure delight, Seems now but vanity. was pure delight, Life's little day is almost spent; Its sun sinks in the west.

They're ready and they're waiting for
The call: "Come home and rest!"
